Welcome to Beverly Landais executive coaching

This brochure is designed to help you explore how being coached might help you to achieve more happiness and success in life and at work.

"Beverly has a natural way of nurturing and encouraging people to fulfil their potential and making them feel good about themselves – and I speak from experience"

Former Head of Corporate Communications, Private Bank

What is executive coaching?

Executive coaching assists people focus on what they want – their goal – and then helps them explore what they can do for themselves to achieve it. The effectiveness of coaching comes from stimulating a person's thinking. Great coaching assists the transformation of good intention into actionable activity that furthers the relevant goal.

Who should consider executive coaching?

- Leaders who would value a confidential, challenging yet supportive confident
- C-suite executives who want to develop strategies for success
- Managers driving change or tackling new situations and who need to hone their skills
- High potential staff on track for promotion or newly appointed in post
- Professionals wanting to improve their marketing and ability to win business
- Individuals seeking personal development and greater professional satisfaction
- Teams that need to rejuvenate, refocus and create a shared sense of purpose
- Organisations ready to introduce a coaching culture

"Beverly is exceptional high-end coach for the C-suite and those looking to promote long-lasting change in their thought process and daily conduct"

C-Suite Executive, Management Consultancy "Beverly provided me with clear uncluttered actionable tools that I have been able to employ day to day at work. This has resulted in my confidence and selfassurance growing"

Senior Executive, Private Equity
